Fund Manager's Report 基金經理報告

Expectations for Hong Kong banks to raise prime rates for the first time in more than a decade created demand for the local currency. Hong Kong is transitioning into a higher interest rate environment; however, the recent increase in lending rates may not be significant enough to change the overall landscape of Hong Kong's liquidity. Ample liquidity remains in the Hong Kong system, which may put pressure on the Hong Kong dollar to remain at the weak end of the peg. Nonetheless, it is a step forward for Hong Kong rates to gradually converge to US rates, given the peg system that is in place.

由於市場預期香港銀行將於十多年來首次上調最優惠利率，本地貨幣需求增加。香港正過渡至加息周期，但投資團隊相信此輪加息的幅度未必足以改變香港金融體系的整體流動性。流動性持續充裕可能繼續令港元受壓，使其徘徊於聯繫匯率幅度的疲弱水平。不過，聯繫匯率制度將會令香港與美國的利率差距逐步收窄。

Most management teams suggest that the market environment remains strong, particularly in the US and Europe. The team sees opportunity in emerging markets, in select cyclical names in developed markets, and in companies that are innovating rapidly through "smart" capex and research and development investments to drive a secular gain in market shares.
